Kalimantan Adventure

Kalimantan occupies nearly three-quarters of the island of Borneo, and plays host to some of the oldest rainforests in the world. The steaming jungles of Tanjung Puting are a haven to Orang-utans, proboscis monkeys and an array of incredible wildlife, and the tribal Dayak people live in sync with this nature, as they have done for hundreds of years.

But Kalimantan is not just about the rainforest, there are bustling markets to be explored, rivers to be rafted, delicious local food to be sampled, and island reefs to be discovered.

DAY 2 - Fly to Pangkalanbun, river cruise through Tanjung Puting National Park

We take an early morning flight to Pangkalanbun, the gateway to Kalimantan. Upon arrival we will be welcomed by our Explore Leader and together we will drive to Kumai, the starting point for our river cruise. We will board our klotaks (traditional wooden riverboats) and get settled in, before starting our journey up-river and into Tanjung Puting National Park. As we float along it is common to see monkeys such as the proboscis and long-tail swinging from tree to tree looking after their young, and a host of colourful birds like hornbills and kingfishers. In fact Tanjung Puting National Park has been designated as a UNESCO Biosphere Reserve and is home not only to the biggest wild population of orang-utan in the world, but also to clouded leopards, civets, sun bears, mouse deer, pythons and crocodiles. There are over 230 known species of birds here, with the park's 'bird lakes' creating seasonal rookeries for several endangered water birds. In the evening we will moor up against the side of the river bank, where dinner is served aboard whilst the beds are made up by the boat crew. Accommodation aboard our klotak is simple yet comfortable; boats are approximately 15 metres in length by around 2 metres in width, with an upper deck for rainforest and wildlife viewing, and an open-sided lower deck for sleeping. Mattresses and pillows are placed on the floor with a mosquito net hung over them, and there is a shared toilet aboard. All meals will be provided on the cruise by our onboard cook, and each boat will comfortably take around six to eight people.

DAY 3 - Second day cruising along the river watching Orang-utan feedings and visiting Camp Leakey Research Centre

We wake this morning to the dawn chorus of the jungle, the sounds of the birds singing in the trees and the call of the gibbons from within the dense green forests. After breakfast we set off on foot for the Pondok Tanggui Camp, the first of the orang-utan rehabilitation centres we visit, where we will have our first close-encounter with these beautiful but gentle giants. We arrive for the 9am feeding, where rangers feed the orphaned or rescued orang-utans under their care to aid their eventual rehabilitation back into the jungle. After a short trek back to the boat, we continue up-river to perhaps the most well-known camp in the area, Camp Leakey. The centre was set up in 1971 by Louis Leakey to support research and conservation in the national park. As well as supporting hugely important ecological and conservational research, it also functions as an orang-utan rehabilitation centre. Here we visit the camp and learn about the important and vital work that is being carried out here, as well having a chance to witness another feeding. The afternoon feedings here can be quite a spectacle, where primates traverse braches overhead and swing down onto the platforms to greedily gobble-up their bananas, sweet potatoes and other favourite fruits of the forest. This evening we continue by boat to the Nipah Palm, known locally as the 'house of the fireflies'. If the skies are clear and free of rain this evening, we will be able to observe the fascinating spectacle of the fluorescent fireflies dancing from palm to palm.

DAY 4 - Morning rainforest walk, afternoon drive to Pangkalanbun

This morning we have some more time to explore the jungles of Tanjung Putting on a short walk through the forest. On our walk we hope to encounter more of the wildlife that inhabits this steamy corner of Borneo, perhaps the Giant Bornean butterfly or the barking deer, whilst the guide points out various flora that is endemic to this part of the world. This is a short walk of around three to four kilometres where the terrain is mostly flat with little undulation. After our walk we sail back to Kumai, disembark and then drive to Pangkalanbun, where the remainder of the afternoon is at leisure.

There is a full day's driving ahead of us today as we travel to the city of Palangkaraya. The drive will be regularly broken up every few hours, and we plan to make some interesting stops along the way, including Bukit Batu, a curious collection of rock formations shrouded in mysterious stories and cultural beliefs. The drive will take around eight-ten hours to depending on traffic conditions and we anticipate arriving in the late afternoon, where the remainder of the day is free.

DAY 6 - Share lunch with a Dayak tribe and cruise along the Kahayan River

This morning we head out of the city and set off on a gentle walk to Bukit Tangkiling. In Indonesian 'Bukit' translates to 'hill', and if the weather is favourable we will get great views of the surrounding areas, as well as learning about the stories behind the collection of large stones found here. We then continue on, passing through several Dayak villages where we will spot 'Sandungs', an example of one of the many Dayak's interesting traditions. These Sandungs look like miniature houses with ornately carved roofs and are often brightly and intricately decorated. They sit up on stilts and beneath the houses lie the remains of the deceased family members, as it is believed that the house will be brought by the deceased to paradise. We stop for lunch with a Dayak tribe where we sample traditional cuisine and learn some more about their beliefs and rituals. Popular dishes in this area are fresh steamed fish with lemongrass, young rattan in coconut milk or 'Sayur Kelakai' a vegetable dish made with ferns. It's interesting to see how the locals use the forest around them - as well as a variety of food, leaves are used to make a natural mosquito repellent and the rattan is taken to make handicrafts and decorations for the villager's houses. After lunch we continue onto Kahayan River, the biggest waterway in Central Kalimantan and the life source for so many that live here. We take a cruise along the river and witness the daily lives of the people that call these river banks home.

DAY 7 - Drive to Banjarmasin, afternoon visit to a diamond mine and workshop

We set off this morning for Banjarmasin, with the drive taking approximately four to five hours including stops. Just before we reach Banjarmasin we will visit the diamond mines of Cempaka, where we will see the first of a three-stage process involved in the diamond industry that this region is known for. First we visit the mines where we see locals mining using traditional tools and we learn about all of the methods involved in extraction, including diamond panning. Next we will visit the cutting office where the diamonds are cut, polished and readied for market. This office was part of a joint initiative between the Bank of Indonesia and the Dutch government to provide cutting machines and training to the locals here, enabling them to successfully self-produce high quality jewellery, and thereby maximising the benefit to the local economy. After the cutting office we continue to the diamond market of Martapura where we have a chance to browse through the beautiful collection of finished products. After lunch and some time for relaxing and freshening up, we take a late-afternoon cruise through the canals of city, witnessing the Banjar people use the canals as they ply their trades and go about their daily business.

DAY 8 - Visit Loh Baitan floating market and drive to Loksado. Afternoon cruise to a buffalo swamp

We rise early today to head out to the colourful floating market of Loh Baitan, located on the upper section of the Martapura River, about an hour's cruise from our hotel. Here we see women dressed in traditional brightly coloured Dayak clothing and trading exotic fruits, vegetables and snacks, all grown and produced locally. With the help of the Explore Leader we can try our hand at bartering for some fresh fruit, before returning to our hotel for breakfast. Later we drive to Loksado, the gateway for the habitat of the Bukit Daya. Thanks to the towering Meratus Mountains and their regular catchment of the rain, the large plains below are kept irrigated and in the surrounding areas we find lush tropical forests and fields of rice and rubber, along with a patchwork of plantations growing exotic fruits and vegetables. This afternoon we visit Negara, known locally for its extensive swamp lands that are popular with vast herds of Water Buffalo. We explore the swamp by simple klotak (wooden canoe) and watch the buffalos grazing on the lush grasses, and there is a good chance we will see them swimming together as a herd. We then proceed onto our guesthouse this evening for dinner.

Accommodation: Meratus Guest House (or similar)

DAY 9 - In Loksado. Day walk in the surrounding countryside and swim by a waterfall

Today we explore our surroundings on foot, leaving our guesthouse behind as we walk through a countryside peppered with rubber plantations and pockets of forests. The trail meanders past small villages and farm settlements, crossing suspension bridges that traverse the river below. As we pass the villages we will see the traditional family houses of the Dayak people, which they call Balai. These stilt houses are usually left empty and kept for ritual ceremonies and gatherings, as the Dayaks here still adhere to the animist beliefs of their ancestors. We break for lunch at the beautiful Haratai Waterfall, where it is possible to take a dip in the refreshing water whilst the guide prepares lunch. The walk is approximately 10 kilometres and we anticipate it to take around five hours along gently undulating terrain. After lunch we return to our guesthouse, where the rest of the afternoon is at leisure. It is possible to swim in the banks of the river in front of our guesthouse, or there a number of other walks available in the area.

Accommodation: Meratus Guest House (or similar)

DAY 10 - Bamboo rafting on the Amandit River. Afternoon drive back to Banjarmasin

This morning we set off for an exciting ride down the Amandit River aboard a bamboo raft. This kind of raft, known locally as 'lanting', was used as the main mode of transport for moving commodities from Loksado down river to be sold in Banjarmasin, before the town was made accessible by road in 1989. Even with road access, locals still rely upon the river to get about and to transport goods today. Each raft is suitable for three people, and there is a small bench to sit on as we float down river. Life jackets are provided, but there are small sections of faster water so be prepared to get wet! Stops will be made along the way to enjoy fresh coconuts and to swim in the calmer sections of the river. It may also be possible to try your hand at raft jockeying, learning how to steer the raft with the aid of the jockey's bamboo stick. The rafting will be around two to three hours in length, and there will be an opportunity to get dry and change clothes before we continue back to Banjarmasin.

DAY 11 - Free morning in the city, afternoon flight to Berau

This morning is free to either relax, or for further exploration of the 'City of a Thousand Rivers'. Palau Kembang (Flower island) can be visited by boat, housing an old Chinese temple and some wily long-tailed macaques, or there is the Museum Waja Sampai Ka Putting, a traditional Banjarese house that has been converted into a museum showcasing an historic look into this trading port. Later this morning we transfer to the airport for our flight to East Kalimantan and to the city of Berau. There is the opportunity this evening to walk down to the city's night market, a hive an activity in the early evening where locals meet to eat street food and relax by the river. For those that would like to try some of the local street food, our Explore Leader can help run through some of the dishes available, which are likely be fried fish and seafood, 'Roti Bakar' (Indonesian toast) and various tasty fried snacks.

Accommodation: Palmy Hotel Berau (or similar)

DAY 12 - Speedboat through the mangroves out into the ocean to the Maratua Island

We leave the mainland behind today as we board our speedboat for Maratua Island. The journey is an interesting one, which takes us down river from our hotel's front door, out of the city and into vast swathes of mangroves, where, if we are lucky we might see Proboscis monkeys. As the river spills out into the ocean we make our way on to the Derawan archipelago, a cluster of four remote islands that sit in the middle of the Celebes Sea. At the heart of this archipelago is Maratua Island, our base for the next 3 nights. This slice of tropical paradise is made up of 384 square kilometres of white sand beaches, lush forests and thick mangroves, all surrounded by warm waters that contain the third-highest level of marine biodiversity in the world (after neighbours Raja Ampat and Solomon Islands). Upon arrival, we will check into our resort, where the remainder of the afternoon is free to relax or explore our immediate surroundings. Our resort here comprises of comfortable rooms with hot showers and air-conditioning. The accommodation is made up of a few different buildings with the centre point being the restaurant, located on a rocky escarpment with wonderful views out onto the ocean. It is possible to swim and snorkel from the beach next to the resort.

Accommodation: Maratua Guest House (or similar)

Simple Guesthouse

Meals Provided: Breakfast

DAY 13 - Free day on Maratua Island, relax on the beach and visit a jellyfish lake

Today has been left free to relax on the beach or to participate in any optional excursions. One option is to visit Kakaban Island, an uninhabited island that contains a vast salt lake in the centre. The trail snakes through the forest to reach the lake which is filled with huge numbers of stingless jellyfish, one of only two places in the world stingless jellyfish can be found. The lake is something of an ecological marvel, where the seawater has been trapped inside causing its inhabitants to evolve. With no natural predators the jellyfish have lost the ability to sting. As well as this we find stingless box jellyfish that have shrunk in size, spotted jellyfish with no spots and Cassiopeia that swim upside down, with their tentacles facing up to the surface! For those that are brave enough, we can put on our snorkel and mask and go swimming with these fascinating creatures.

Accommodation: Maratua Guest House (or similar)

Simple Guesthouse

DAY 14 - Free day on Maratua Island, optional snorkelling and visit to see nesting turtles

Today is another free day on the island, where there is the option to book a snorkelling trip to nearby Payung Payung. Here we snorkel in the warm shallow waters where we are likely to see a huge array of tropical fish and there is a very good chance we will see and swim with giant turtles. This evening it may be possible to visit the protected area of Sangalaki Island. The island has no inhabitants, allowing for a safe nesting place for the endangered sea turtles. At a safe distance, we witness the incredible event of the turtles coming ashore to lay their precious eggs in the sand. It is also a known spot to encounter huge manta rays, which we hope to see in the dusky light on our way over to the island.

Accommodation: Maratua Guest House (or similar)

Simple Guesthouse

DAY 15 - Speedboat to Berau and fly to Jakarta

This morning we leave Maratua and sail back to Berau on our speedboat. Here we part ways with our Explore Leader, before flying back to Jakarta. Due to the late arrival in Jakarta, we will overnight at an airport hotel here, with many international flights leaving Jakarta early the next morning.

Why book this trip

Relatively unknown to all but the hardiest of travellers, Kalimantan sits in the large shadow cast by its much better-known neighbour of Malaysian Borneo. But in fact Indonesian Borneo, or Kalimantan as it is more commonly known, occupies nearly three-quarters of the island and is home to the same rich biodiversity and endemic wildlife, but receives far fewer tourists annually. This is a destination where animal encounters are plentiful, tribal encounters are genuine, and sharing the experience with few other tourists is guaranteed. This trip suits those with an adventurous spirit that are happy trading home comforts for unique experiences. There are a lot of excursions and activities that are based on or in the near water, so the ability to swim is preferable.

In order to make things easier for you, the Tour Leaders may organise a group's tips kitty and if this is the case, they will account for it throughout the tour.
