Itinerary

Itineraries on some departure dates may differ, please select the itinerary that you wish to explore.

DAY 1 - Join trip in Siem Reap, the gateway to the iconic Angkor temple complex Arrive in Siem Reap and check-in to the hotel, where the rest of the day is at leisure.

Siem Reap is the modern gateway to the ancient temples of Angkor, and while undoubtedly people flock here for the temples, the town itself is well worth exploring. Just a small village when the French 're-discovered' Angkor in the 19th century, Siem Reap has now ballooned in size to cater for every type of tourist and their budget. An evening stroll along its grid-like streets uncovers a lively foodie scene with restaurants and street stalls to cater for every palate, as well as a host of spas offering a traditional Khmer massage. The night market is a great place to haggle for a bargain, and then of course there is 'Pub Street' - a pedestrianised melee of neon lights, street performers, bars, restaurants and people. Not for everybody, but for most it's worth a visit for a chance to soak up Siem Reap's vibrant atmosphere.

DAY 2 - Explore the jungle temples of Angkor, watch the sunset at Pre Rup

This morning we visit the beautiful Angkor Wat for sunrise - the best known and most breathtaking of all the sights and a highlight of any visit to Angkor. Originally built as a funerary temple for Suryavarman II in honour of Vishnu, the temple is unique as it faces west - symbolically the direction of death. It is a very grand and imposing structure but its most stunning features are the extensive and intricately carved bas reliefs that stretch throughout the galleries and inner temples. Here we have the chance to enjoy a monk's blessing. This afternoon we continue our exploration with a visit to the temples of King Jayavarman VII, reputedly Angkor's greatest king. The fortified city of Angkor Thom which he had built at the end of the 12th century is enclosed by a square wall eight metres high with five 20 metre high monumental gates decorated with stone elephant trunks. Originally the moat was said to be inhabited by crocodiles and each gate was protected by huge statues of 54 different gods. The city contains another of Angkor's true gems - The Bayon. Not nearly as impressive as Angkor Wat from a distance, The Bayon is nevertheless incredible for its maze of corridors, gothic style towers and magical central temples with 1200 metres of the finest bas reliefs depicting scenes of everyday life in 12th Century Cambodia. Our day draws to close as we walk to Phimeanakas, located in the middle of the old Royal Palace area, and to the Terrace of the Elephants and the Leper King.

DAY 3 - Morning cycle to Hero Rats project and Re-Hash Trash. Free afternoon for further exploration

A change of pace this morning sees us setting off on two wheels, leisurely cruising along the quiet back streets and having a chance to witness the daily life of the locals, as we cycle away from the main tourist areas. Our first stop on this morning's cycle is the APOPO Visitor Centre, and here we learn of the fantastic work being done to clear the still-active land mines from the surrounding towns and villages. Cambodia is thought to have the highest ratio of mine amputees per capita in the world, with some 6 million mines believed to still be in the ground. APOPO have taken a unique approach to mine-clearance, training up so called 'Hero Rats' to sniff out landmines with their incredible sense of smell. The rats are too light to set off the pressure-activated mines and are trained to sniff only explosives rather than metal, thus working much faster than a conventional metal detector. We spend some time learning about the fascinating work being done here, along with witnessing a demonstration and having the chance to meet the surprisingly cuddly critters.

Next we cycle over to Re-Hash Trash; another fascinating initiative that has taken a novel approach to try and tackle the devastating effect plastic litter has had on Cambodia. This social enterprise has been set up to clear plastic from the streets and then transform it into anything from pieces of art to re-useable useful items like placemats and coasters. It also works to educate young people in the villages to provide them with transferable skills they can utilise when moving into adulthood.

We have the opportunity to try and create something for ourselves, before continuing our cycle through backstreets and alongside canals back to our hotel, where the rest of the afternoon is free.

The total amount of cycling is approximately four hours including the stops, covering a distance of 20 kilometres which is almost entirely flat.

This afternoon there is the option to further explore the Angkor temple complex. Please note an additional Angkor pass will need to be purchased which will cover you for a day of further exploration - $37 per person

DAY 4 - Free morning in Siem Reap. Afternoon drive to Sambor Prei Kuk homestay

We have another free morning to explore some more of Angkor's extensive temples, or perhaps experience a Khmer massage, partake in a monk's blessing or just sip a French coffee whilst soaking up Siem Reap's infectious atmosphere.

After lunch we leave the city behind, travelling for some time alongside the great Tonle Sap Lake as we drive to our homestay in the village of Sambor Prei Kuk. On arrival we will meet our host family and share dinner with them, sampling a variety of tasty Khmer dishes and learning a little more of traditional life in Cambodia - a country that still relies heavily on sustenance farming outside its two main cities.

We overnight in a traditional Khmer wooden stilt house, staying with our host family. the accomodation comprises of twin-share rooms spread across a few of the village houses, with western-style toilets located in each house. All pillows, bedding and mosquito nets are provided, but showering opportunities will be limited - an Asian 'bucket' style shower is avaialble in most houses.

DAY 5 - Visit the ruins of Sambor Prei Kuk before driving to Phnom Penh

After a freshly prepared breakfast we bid goodbye to our hosts to explore the nearby ruins of Sambor Prei Kuk. This UNESCO World Heritage Site pre-dates the Angkor period, it is thought that some of the earliest buildings were constructed in the 7th century during the Chenla Kingdom. These red-brick temples, enveloped on all sides by leafy forests are each dedicated to the three Hindu gods Shiva, Bramha and Vishnu. Each temple features its own style of intricate carvings set into the sandstone, and the complex feels quite different to the Angkor temples we have visited just the day before.

After some time to appreciate the peaceful surroundings of Sambor Prei Kuk, we turn back onto the main road and head for the capital, Phnom Penh.

Located on the Mekong River the city has been the capital since 1440s. It is now a lively city with many French colonial buildings, busy markets, art galleries, temples and museums. This evening is free to explore this charming French colonial city - perhaps take a stroll alongside the Mekong stopping for street-food, or sip cocktails on the terrace of the FCC - Foreign Correspondent's Club.

We continue onto Wat Phnom, the city's glittering centre piece and then the National Museum, a beautifully ornate building that houses a fascinating array of Khmer architecture.

After lunch we stop at the infamous 'Killing Fields' of Choeung Ek. Here we find the huge glass tower filled with human skulls, acting as both a memorial piece and a sombre reminder of the scale of Pol Pot's atrocities). We'll also visit Tuol Sleng Genocide Museum, also known as S-21 (a High School which became the Khmer Rouge's main torture and interrogation centre). You should be aware that many people find Tuol Sleng and the 'Killing Fields' quite an emotional place to visit.

Nestled in the south-eastern corner of the Cardamom mountains, Chi Phat is a small palm-lined village embracing an eco-tourism initiative to bring the beautiful surroundings of the area to visitors in a sustainable and responsible way. The area is a nature-lovers paradise, Chi Phat hosts an incredible selection of flora and fauna, including the largest herd of wild elephants found in Asia.

After lunch we set off for a short nature walk to explore our surroundings, where there will also be the

At this time in the morning there is often mist rolling across the river, further adding to the atmosphere. Over 450 species of bird are found in this area, and this morning we hope to be able to spot eagles, hornbills, or the endemic Siamese partridge, along with macaques, gibbons and silver langurs. By contrast, Koh Rong has no cars, no roads and just four villages, with the island comprising of a jungle-clad interior enveloped by white-sand beaches. More guesthouses are starting to pop up along the island's coastline as word of Koh Rong's beauty spreads, but today the island still offers a little slice of paradise away from the tourist masses. Climate

Cambodia is a hot and tropical country, being hottest in April and coolest in January (still high 20s). Although rainfall is at its maximum in October, Phnom Penh and Siem Reap receive very little rain compared to the coastal areas, and when it does rain it tends to be in the form of sporadic mid afternoon downpours. There is normally very little rain between December and March.

It's a tricky one, and down to personal preference, but we'd recommend between £15 to £20 per person per week as a guideline.

Local crew

Local Crew: Although entirely voluntary, tipping is a recognized part of life in this region of the world. Some local staff will look to members of the group for personal recognition of particular services provided. Why book this trip

This trip aims to showcase the two sides of Cambodia - contrasting the well-known UNESCO temples of Angkor and the lively capital of Phnom Penh, with village homestays, jungle river cruises and idyllic paradise islands. Cambodia's rapid rise in tourism has meant many have found new wealth, immediately evident with the modern stores and SUVs found throughout Phnom Penh. But outside the cities this wealth has not trickled down, with most villagers living a humble life and still relying on hand-to-mouth agriculture. Through genuine encounters with locals, visiting eco-tourism initiatives and getting away from the beaten path, we hope to be able to bring you a well-balanced and complete insight into Cambodia - a country with a dark past, but an exciting and bright future.
